Feast your eyes on our VISUAL Senses Chapter!

Sensory processing refers to our ability to take in information through our senses. Our visual perception is how our brain processes, interprets and makes sense of what we see.

Visual perception can refer to blindness but, it can also be an inability to recognise elements of visual information. For example, faces, objects, people, lights, and or backgrounds.

If you are looking for products that will encourage peripheral vision or visual tracking, you should start here.

Note, many sensory skills do overlap. Visual hand-eye coordination may be best served by products found in other chapters such as MOTOR or SOCIALISATION.

Auditory processing disorder (APD) or Auditory Hypersensitivity can affect people of all ages, but it often starts in childhood.

It can affect your ability to understand speech, distinguish sounds, and concentrate around background noise.

But it doesn't have to be a barrier when it comes to playtime! We provide a wide range of fun auditory toys to help explore and develop this important sense.

Look out for our Resonance selection which magnifies the vibration inherent in sound, enabling us to feel as well as hear sounds.

Look in COMMUNICATION for musical instruments and find noisy puzzles in COGNITION.

Welcome to the TACTILE chapter!

Our skin is our largest sensory organ. Tickling labels and unfamiliar fabrics can be annoying but, for those who are tactile defensive or sensitive, it can be unbearable.

We believe that exposure to new textures can be fun and that through controlled tactile play we can widen our senses and reduce unpleasant experiences.

Products in this section have been specially chosen for the tactile seekers among us. Products may help to reduce mouthing and other self-stimulatory behaviours.

Note, if you are looking for toys that vibrate, take a look at our PROPRIOCEPTION chapter which also carries items to squeeze, brush, and apply forms of deep pressure.

Develop your understanding of PROPRIOCEPTION in this chapter.

Proprioception makes up a large part of sensory therapy. But, what is it and how does it work? Proprioception is, essentially, an awareness of one's own body; its movement, balance and how all parts relate to one another.

The body's Proprioception is controlled by receptors (in skin, muscles, and joints) that connect with the brain through the nervous system. This system ensures that, even without seeing, a person knows what his or her body is doing.

Children who are clumsy, uncoordinated, and sensory seeking are often experiencing some degree of proprioceptive dysfunction.

Products in this section have been chosen for their ability to help with the concept of body awareness. Any product that encourages reaching, or helps with positioning or balance will also have this benefit, try COGNITION for building blocks, MOTOR for balance, and MSE for beanbags.

The VESTIBULAR sense is a key element in sensory integration therapy.

Children and adults who are sensory challenged will often use toys that spin or bounce to stimulate their vestibular system - or their inner ear. The inner ear helps with balance and lets the body know when, and how fast, it is moving.

Some of our favourite vestibular activities involve playground accessories such as swings, trampolines, bouncers, and rockers.

These recreational activities are self-paced and fun, making them ideal for both stimulating the under-responsive child and calming for the over-responsive or sensory seeking child.

Turn the page to view our stock of confidence boosting swings and other active products which, through weight shifting, stimulate the vestibular sense.

Products that use balance can also be found in the MOTOR Chapter.

Ever since Jean Ayres identified* the importance of Sensory Integration (SI), and suggested a link with our vestibular sense, therapists have been including a regimen of swinging and spinning in their programs. It is possible* that a stimulated Vestibular helps the brain organise and process other sensory input. At TFH we believe in fun, and at this price you can experiment for yourself. *Sensory Integration and the Child, 1979. * An important area for future research is to evaluate Sensory Integration in studies with strong experimental designs. Professionals should present Sensory Integration as untested and encourage families who are considering this intervention to evaluate it carefully - The Association for Science in Autism Treatment (ASAT).

MOTOR skills are simply actions that involve the movement and control of muscles.

The motor skills we use can be split up into gross motor skills (body spatial awareness, balance, and control when crawling, jumping, running etc.) and fine motor skills (using smaller muscles to touch, feel, pick up, pinch, grab etc.).

Studies find that individuals with sensory challenges may struggle to develop such skills.

However, these obstacles can be overcome and, even better, we can encourage, strengthen, and develop motor skills through fun and play!

We collect and design fun motor toys and games that compliment any sensory diet! So, turn the page and ask not what a product can do for you but, what you can do with a product.

Our COGNITIVE segment works towards increasing confidence, improving self-esteem and overcoming everyday obstacles - whilst having fun!

A person's COGNITIVE sense can refer to their ability to reason, reflect, remember, recognise, problem solve, understand, learn, and or pay attention. Each cognitive skill helps the brain to process and make sense of new information.

Once information is processed, it is then stored and can be used again to form appropriate responses and make sense of everyday tasks or experiences.

Themes including sports, school, home life, and comfort can all be explored in this section of the catalogue. Encourage cognitive development through fun memory, concentration, and perception activities.

At TFH we have been designing and installing Multi Sensory Environments (MSE) for over 25 years in a variety of settings including schools, hospitals, and private homes.

While every Multi Sensory Environment is designed to suit our clients' requirements, the goal is always to provide a safe and rewarding environment within which the normal rules do not apply.

Rich sensory spaces react to the user, allowing individuals to affect and even control their world.

Touch screen technology is rapidly changing the potential of MSE, but a TFH installation will always be simple to use. That's the point!

Bubble Columns are the visual focal point of a multi-sensory room.

A really good Bubble Column has bright controllable colours: its quiet pump is powerful and can be controlled by a user with a switch.

Airflow in a TFH Column can also be easily adjusted to effect the mood of the space: a gentle flow is more relaxing; full power is highly stimulating; and 3 pulse patterns make the space come alive.

Our columns are all strongly built and thoroughly tested in our UK workshop.

They will not leak.

We highly recommend the addition of a Security Bracket and if space allows, a Podium.

The Projector is the heart of a Multi-Sensory Environment, casting gently moving images and patterns onto the walls, floor and anyone in the way. Projection Curtains double the impact of the projector, as the image is projected both on and through the sheer material. Projection Curtains allow you to actually touch the images without casting a shadow, creating a relaxing, almost fluid space, completely surrounded by light. Add a fan to stimulate the curtains or a Panoramic Rotator to send the images flowing around the room and you have created an environment in which the normal rules have changed. Different behaviours will be exhibited; what can you make of them? Both Projectors can be secured to a shelf or to the ceiling by a swivel point that allows the image to be moved while holding the projector safely in one place.
