Which paint should I use?

Tempera blocks and paint tray sets

Blocks of compressed pigments that are diluted with water using a brush or a paint brush, the opacity and the brightness of the colours varies according to the quality of the tempera. This tempera which is applied to porous materials such as paper and cardboard, results in vivid colours and a matte, velvety finish. Economical, easy to use and washes easily with water.

Liquid tempera

Liquid tempera is used primarily as-is, although it can be diluted with water. This tempera is designed to be applied to porous materials such as paper and cardboard. Liquid tempera is a water-based paint, covering, opaque that provides a matte and velvety finish. Temperas that are more creamy and concentrated in pigments are also more expensive. Washable and non-toxic.

Acrylic paint

Water-based paint that is permanent once dried. With greater adhesion power than tempera, it can be applied on various materials such as wood, plaster, paper mâché, clay, canvas and fabrics. Opaque paint of viscous consistency that is easy to clean in its wet state, but permanent and waterproof when dry.

Ink and watercolor

Watercolor comes in a tube, small pot or bottle (drawing ink) and is applied to porous materials. Watercolor being particularly brilliant and transparent, allows to work by superposition. More concentrated than the tempera blocks, the watercolor offers great dilution with water. Since watercolor techniques require a lot of water, heavy paper is recommended.

Stained glass and decorative paint

Stained glass paint and decorative paint is applied directly to the brush on different materials, these paints adhere to the smoothest surfaces such as glass, plexiglass, porcelain and metals. Stained glass paint gives the effect of transparency and with the decorative paint we get very good opacity.

All the above-mentioned paints are water-based, non-toxic and washable.

A Tempera Blocks

School quality, economical tempera blocks. 57 mm in diameter, 19 mm thick. Colour pigments compressed in a hard and dry block, that gradually dissolves upon contact with water. Sold in packs of 6 blocks. Non toxic.

Paintbrush Care

It's one thing to purchase good quality paintbrushes, but it is equally important to take good care of them. Quality cleaning and proper storage are essential for good conservation. The cleaning method depends on the paint used and the nature of the bristles.

Watercolour and Tempera

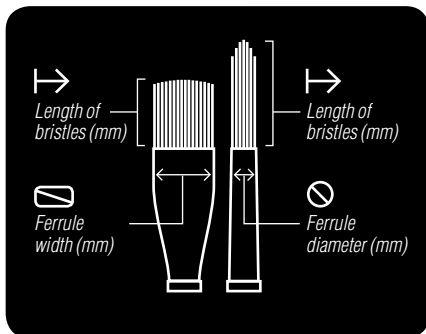

For watercolour and tempera, it is best to use tap water to rinse away any colour residue in the bristles. If needed, mild hand soap can be used but must be thoroughly rinsed.

Acrylic

Acrylic paint becomes permanent when it is dry. It is therefore important to immediately rinse the brushes after each painting session. It can sometimes be necessary to rinse the paintbrushes while painting, because acrylic paint dries very quickly.

Oil

Oil paint is cleaned using solvents such as turpentine oil or taltine solvent. After cleaning, brushes must be thoroughly washed in soapy water to remove any trace of solvent which could burn the fibres after prolonged exposure.

The following image illustrates the various features of our paintbrushes. The symbols illustrated repeat on the following pages as a reference to help you with your choice.

Paintbrushes should dry on a flat surface, or in a stand

Finally, it is important to never leave paintbrushes to soak in liquid for an extended period of time, which will crush and flatten the bristles. Furthermore, moisture causes the handles to expand and their varnish to crack.

See the spiral paint brush stand and filter on page 333 (1201698)

About crayons...

Wax crayons

Wax crayons are made from coloured wax, their bright colours are slightly translucent. Wax crayons come in different diameters, once applied, the pigment on the material is rather stable.

Oil pastels

Round stick in bright colours, oil pastels are softer than wax crayons and allow a quick and effective application with very good coverage. Perfect for gradients, colour mixing and carto-engraving techniques.

Dry pastels

Round or square stick that is ideally used on textured materials. Dry, tender and flaky, they are offered in a wide range of colours. If one wants to keep the work, its powdery and fragile nature requires stabilization using an aerosol clear finish.

Colour pencils

Coloured pencil stick covered with a wooden sheath, the coloured pencil is used for drawing in colour and allows to draw with precision and to create fine details.

Markers

The markers consist of an ink reservoir generally contained in a plastic cylinder. There is a wide variety of diameters and tip sizes. The markers are either water-based or indelible ink-based, commonly called permanent marker.

Hint from B²

Process

B & B aluminium is especially suited to cover objects (boxes) or small wooden or cardboard shapes. Before engraving, cover the object with aluminium, inserting a thick layer of newsprint (as a pad) under the surface to be engraved. The newsprint will permanently remain under the aluminium sheet. Engrave with a pointed instrument or a blunt-lead pencil. Once the engraving is completed, cover the surface with a coat of Indian ink.

Before the ink is dry, wipe it off with a cloth, in such a way that it stays only in the grooves.

Indian ink applied to metals gives them the patina of old metal and generally outlines shapes.

Engraved or embossed metals can be painted with stained-glass enamel, if transparent effects are desired, or with ceramic hobby colours, if you want an opaque colour. Metals can also be coloured with permanent markers.

Modeling Clay

Water-based modeling clay (Tutti Frutti)

Very malleable and scented modeling clay, bright colours, always keep in an airtight container, non-toxic and re-hydratable.

Oil-based modeling clay

Vegetable and mineral modeling clays have the advantage of not drying out and being reused time and time again, it is better to keep them in hermetically sealed containers. The colours can be mixed together, ideal for the development of motor skills. Always work on a board or a placemat as it can stain some surfaces.

Ultra-light air-hardening modeling clay

Lightweight and spongy modeling clay that is air-hardening, very flexible and malleable, does not stain and can be painted.

Clay

The red or gray clays require no cooking (with a few exceptions) and are ready to use. They have a natural and moist texture and can be painted once dry. Excellent medium for sensory expression in children.

FIMO modeling clay

Flexible modeling clay ideal for creating small objects such as jewelry. Hardens when baked in a conventional oven.

Hardening powder clay

High density foam carving block

The block of foam can be cut with a saw, dug with a gouge, sculpted with a riffer rasp and sanded with a rasp or a file. You can paint its surface.

Thermoplastic Modeling

in 5 easy steps!

The result is surprising...
all you have left to do
is paint it!

A Worbla Thermoplastic

This thermoplastic modeling material can be shaped by hand without special safety equipment. It can take complex curves without requiring vacuum forming, and is self-adhesive when heated: no glue is required to join pieces. Shape the plastic however you want simply with hot air, water or steam. There's no waste, leftovers can be conditioned and totally re-blended and moulded to become just like putty. Many artists use Worbla instead of clay to create near-indestructible pieces. Non-toxic and skin safe. One leaf of 100 cm x 150 cm.

Hint from B²

For art students and teachers alike, the "cahier de traces" is a unique system promoting a more structured process of creation and evaluation. In this section, you will find several teaching tools with colour illustrations on glossy paper, on a variety of subjects including orientation and artistic notions. The tools also include a timeline of various art movements.

The "cahier de traces" allows teachers to track and assess the artistic work and progress of their students on a top-quality cartridge paper. This initiative was launched to address the guidelines set by the Éducation, Loisir et Sport Québec, requiring the creation of a tool to track a student's progress through documentation and diversified and relevant reference sources.

The "cahier de traces" is a local initiative compliant with the standards of Éducation, Loisir et Sport Québec. The product is exclusive to Brault & Bouthillier, thanks to its creators, Michelle Lefebvre and Patrick Touchette, and the Commission scolaire de la Capitale.

When art and technology meet!

In a Makerspace, we can create projects with simple sheets of paper or delve into high-tech, everything is possible! We mainly develop the art of learning.

The Makerspace is a place where students and teachers create projects where they find their own solutions. It is a place for sharing, exchanging, trying, making mistakes, starting over and succeeding...together!

An array of tools and materials are at your disposal to unleash creative minds.

Do you know STEAM?

Science + Technology + Engineering + Art + Math

From paper to wooden sticks, crayons to 3D printers, when an idea is launched or a project starts taking shape, the trial and error process brings the Makerspace to life.

Meeting place for a community of learners, it's not just about sharing tools, it's mainly about sharing knowledge and experiences.

Resources for the Makerspace can be found in the creative thinking (robotics), science and technology sections, as well as the art and creative leisure section of this catalog.

Worbla Thermoplastic

This thermoplastic modelling material can be shaped by hand without special safety equipment. It can take complex curves without requiring vacuum forming, and is self-adhesive when heated: no glue is required to join pieces. Shape the plastic however you want simply with hot air, water or steam. There's no waste, leftovers can be conditioned and totally re-blended and moulded to become just like putty. Many artists use Worbla instead of clay to create near-indestructible pieces. Non-toxic and skin safe. One leaf of 100 cm x 150 cm.

Makerspace

• 2018

B&B inaugurates its Makerspace: when art and technology meet!

The Makerspace is a place where students and teachers create projects where they find their own solutions. It is a place for sharing, exchanging, trying, making mistakes, starting over and succeeding... together!

When an idea is launched or a project starts taking shape, the trial and error process brings the Makerspace to life.

Meeting place for a community of learners, it's not just about sharing tools, it's mainly about sharing knowledge and experiences.

The Makerspace resources can be found in the following sections of our 2019-2020 School catalog:
Robotics: pages 183 to 201
Science & Technology: pages 202 to 221
Arts and Creative leisure: pages 308 to 439

Let's celebrate
75years
of serious play!
